Manille

© Design by Dirk Wynants for Extremis, 2023

Centuries ago, the Manille card game made its way to France and Western Belgium. Today, the game remains immensely popular in West Flanders, and also at the Extremis offices.

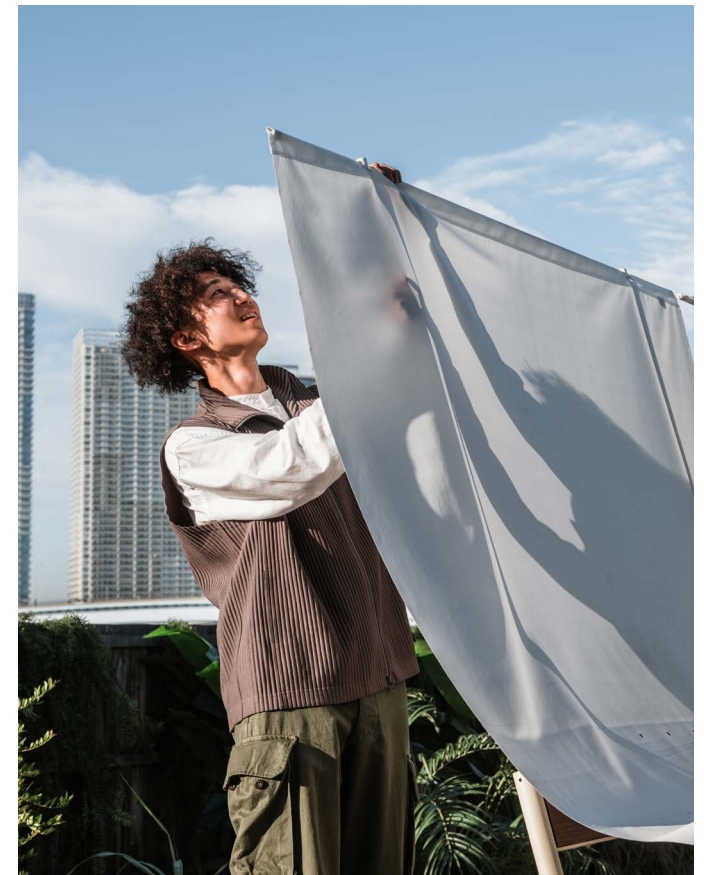

All our designs are original creations and protected by intellectual property rights.

An outdoor table that offers practicality, easy transport and fun? Step up your game with the Manille picnic table! The roof-shaped 'Fixed Shade' ensures you're always sitting on a dry seat and protected from the harsh sun. You don't need to close or bring in this shade — it can remain outside permanently, if the furniture is securely anchored to the ground.

What would a city park be without benches here and there to sit and enjoy nature? We experience fewer visual stimuli, we escape the noise and bustle of the city. The well-placed resting points along the paths, however, also serve an important social function: they are meeting spots where people deliberately choose to spend time.

The backrests offer a relaxed seating posture, while the table at least allows for a card game between four friends. But it doesn't stop there: Manille is designed to be connected in series, creating much longer tables to accommodate the whole family. The more, the merrier! And access is always maintained — you never have to climb over the bench.
